WHIPPING POST CUTS DOWN CRIME, HE SAYS

Wilmington Police Chief Declares
Fear of Punishment Keeps Expert Crooks Away.

Newark, N. J., June 9.—The only perfectly proper measure of punishment for a certain class of offenders, according to many of the chiefs of police who are attending the twenty-third annual convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, is the whipping post. George Black, chief of police of Wilmington, Del., in an interview, said: "The proper treatment of persons convicted of crime has engrossed from the beginning of time the attention of all classes who have given any consideration to the subject. Today more intelligent consideration is given to this matter than ever before, and I consider this one of the very hopeful signs of the time.

"It is the opinion of myself—and I am sure I do not misrepresent the facts when I say that this opinion is shared by a large portion of our best thinking people—that the whipping post, a former United States Ambassador to England, who is being sued for divorce, is required to show cause why he should not pay $5,000 a month alimony and $10,000 counsel fees, according to a ruling by Judge McMichael, in Common Pleas Court No. 2. The case is set for June 12.

Edna McClure, a former manicure in a barber shop in this city, is named as the "other woman" by his wife, Mrs. Helen Gallatin Welsh, who lives at the Ritz-Carlton.

While she and her husband were traveling in Europe in the summer of 1914, Edna McClure sent telegrams to Mrs. Welsh signed "Eddie," according to Mrs. Welsh, who said that her husband admitted they were from a woman. This was her first intimation that there was "another woman." Later her husband offered her $50,000 if she would not create a scandal, she said.

Her husband's income is between $300,000 and $500,000 annually, she set forth. The couple, who were married in 1907, have two boys. Divorce proceedings were begun October 1, 1915, desertion being the ground given.

$6,000 A MONTH ALIMONY ASKED BY WEALTHY WIFE

Philadelphia, June 9.—Charles N. Welsh, of Chestnut Hill, a wealthy clubman and grandson of John Welsh, a former United States Ambassador to England, who is being sued for divorce, is required to show cause why he should not pay $5,000 a month alimony and $10,000 counsel fees, according to a ruling by Judge McMichael, in Common Pleas Court No. 2. The case is set for June 12.

McLEAN FUNERAL AT FRIENDSHIP

Newspaper Publisher Will Be Buried in Rock Creek Cemetery Tomorrow.

JOHN R. McLEAN, noted publisher and financier, who died yesterday at Friendship, his beautiful suburban home.

—Copyright, Harris & Ewing.

Arrangements for the funeral of John R. McLean, financier, politician and publisher, who died yesterday, have been practically completed. The services will be held at the McLean country home at Friendship tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Roland Cotton Smith, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church, will officiate. Interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery, where Mr. McLean's wife, father and mother are buried. The pallbearers and other details of the funeral will be announced today.

Mr. McLean, owner of the Washington Post and Cincinnati Enquirer, died at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his country mansion. Attacked with jaundice the latter part of March, his condition fluctuated for weeks. His life was despaired of until May, when he began to improve. The rally was but temporary, and two weeks ago his condition became serious. He was unconscious for two days prior to death.

Physicians attending him were Dr. Horatio Hare, of Philadelphia, and Dr. Thomas A. Clayton, of Washington, with other specialists in consultation. Widely traveled, conspicuous as a Democrat and famous as a publisher and financier, Mr. McLean's death was a shock to a circle of friends extending into two continents. He was born 68 years ago in Cincinnati, the son of Dr. Washington and Mary L. McLean. His father, who left a considerable fortune, owned a half interest in the Cincinnati Enquirer, where the son received his early newspaper training.

Mr. McLean was educated in public and private schools of Cincinnati, at Harvard University and Heidelberg University, Germany. Returning to Cincinnati, he entered into journalism. He acquired entire control of the Enquirer and instituted reforms in its management whereby it quickly became the leading newspaper of the city and one of the influential journals of the country. He purchased the controlling interest of the Washington Post in 1906.

The ample fortune left him by his father was enhanced by Mr. McLean's business intuition, who not only developed his properties by heritage, but extended his interests until he had assumed a position as one of the country's leading financiers. He was president of the Washington Gas Light Company for many years, part owner of the Old Dominion Railway and a director in the Riggs National Bank and American Security and Trust Company.

Mr. McLean was among the "inner circle" chieftains of the Democratic party. He had been delegate-at-large from Ohio to numerous national party conventions, in 1885 was a delegate for Senator and in 1899 for Democratic governor of Ohio. It is said he might have been in the Senate now, occupying the seat of Senator Pomeroy, but that he declined to be mentioned as a candidate, because of past reverses of his party in the State.

Mr. McLean married Miss Emily Beale, daughter of Gen. Edward F. Beale, of Washington, shortly after his graduation from Harvard. Mrs. McLean died in Bar Harbor in 1912. He is survived by his son, Edward B. McLean, two grandsons, John Roll McLean, 2d, and Vincent Walsh McLean, and by a sister, Mrs. George Dewey, wife of Admiral Dewey.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

District of Columbia and Maryland—Local showers Saturday. Sunday partly cloudy and warmer; light variable winds. Virginia—Partly cloudy in south, probably showers in north; Sunday, Sunday probably fair and warmer; light variable winds.

The indications are that there will be showers Saturday in the Middle and New England States, the Upper Ohio Valley, and the Lower Lake region, followed by generally fair weather and warmer weather in the afternoon and Sunday, except that showers will continue in Northern New England. Elsewhere east of the Mississippi River the weather will be fair Saturday and Sunday.

GETS DEATH SENTENCE AS BIRTHDAY PRESENT

White Plains, June 9.—William McNamara, convicted of having murdered Gregorio George at the instigation of George's wife, who paid him only a couple of dollars out of the $500 it is charged she promised him, celebrates his nineteenth birthday today. The most important incident of it was his sentence by Justice Morchauser. The court fixed the week of July 17, but an appeal will be taken, and this will delay the execution until the case is finally decided. The youth bore up better than was expected. He was crying when sentenced, but did not collapse. When asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him he replied, "All I have to say is that I am innocent." When McNamara, who was known in Hoboken as "Brother Mac," was led away Mrs. George was brought in and her trial on the charge of procuring the murder of her husband proceeded.

GIVING BARGAINS WHEN THE PEOPLE WANT THEM

"Seems like a funny idea to me," said the man about town, "that most merchants wait until after the season is over to reduce their goods instead of having their sales at a time when they will do somebody some good. Now, I think M. Stein & Co., the tailors at Eighth and F streets, have the right idea. They're offering their entire stock of summer suitings at reduced prices now instead of waiting until next month. It's a good move on their part, and the public is appreciating it, for it's the busiest tailoring shop in town. You can go in there now and pick out a fine suit for $14.75 or $18.75 that's worth nearly double those prices, and that, too, right at the time you need the suit. The sale was in full swing when I went in there yesterday, and hundreds of the wise ones are ordering garments for summer wear. Mr. Mudd does the cutting, and that's all the assurance you want that the clothes will fit, for as a designer Mr. Mudd hasn't an equal in this town."—Adv.
